Early life Early years: 1926-1938. Paul-Michel Foucault was born on 15 October 1926 in the city of Poitiers, west-central France, as the second of three children in a prosperous, socially-conservative, upper-middle-class family. Family tradition prescribed naming him after his father, Paul Foucault (1893-1959), but his mother insisted on the addition of Michel; referred to as Paul at ...

Marx also spoke of the so-called nomad population, which constituted 'the light infantry of capital, thrown by it, according to its needs' (e.g. railway-making) and which, too, was connected to certain conditions (Marx 2013, 465). Thus, Marx presented a more complex scene that related infirmity and disability to certain types of activities ...

Marx was the first to notice that these periodic economic crises were an inherent part of the system. He theorized that over-production was the cause, which lead to a destruction of capital. The economist Joseph Schumpeter picked up on this and gave us the term "creative destruction" to frame the busts as corrections to inefficiencies.
